

discuss her on-going research involving people who sell, purchase and wear vintage clothing, based on her survey research, interviews and attending vintage events. Her research explores what dressing in vintage clothing means to consumers in terms of nostalgia, aesthetics, and ethics. The title of Nancy's presentation is "Consuming Nostalgia: Are Vintage Clothing Consumers Caught in the Past?"

Monday, February 27
12:30-1:30pm, OGC 100

Co-sponsored by the Center for Teaching and Learning and the Christensen Center for Vocation.

Please click here to RSVP for Speaking of Scholarship with Nancy Fischer.

📅 February 22, 2017 / ✉ Email a correction for this post

Speaking of Sabbaticals with Psychology Professor Henry Yoon

submitted by kilgorem@augsborg.edu

Members of the campus community are invited to this sabbatical reflection luncheon featuring Psychology professor Henry Yoon. Attendees will learn about Professor Yoon's research with the Minnesota Twin Family Study on abnormal child and adolescent psychology. The title of his presentation is "Developmental Stability of the Reduced P3 Brain Response in ADHD Participants with ODD/CD Comorbidity: a Longitudinal Study."

Please click here to RSVP for Speaking of Sabbaticals with Henry Yoon.

📅 February 22, 2017 / ✉ Email a correction for this post

General Announcements

NODAPL Meeting – TODAY at 3:30 p.m.

submitted by gudaitis@augsborg.edu

There will be a meeting in OGC 202 at 3:30 p.m. today to discuss how the Augsburg community can help the No Dakota Access Pipeline effort. We will be discussing creating a documentary to educate people about the pipeline. This documentary will include interviews with people who have been to Standing Rock. We will also be discussing Augsburg's relationship with Wells Fargo because of Wells Fargo's involvement with funding the pipeline. All are welcome to join us!

📅 February 22, 2017 / ✉ Email a correction for this post

The John R. Mitchell Academy of American Poets Prize

submitted by kilgorem@augsborg.edu

Augsburg undergraduate students are invited to enter the John R. Mitchell Academy of American Poets Prize, sponsored by Jean Mitchell in honor of John Mitchell, former English Department faculty member and poet. The best group of THREE POEMS will be awarded a cash prize of $100 and a certificate from the Academy of American Poets. A poet not affiliated with Augsburg College will judge the contest.

Deadline for entries: March 17, 2017

Conditions of entry:

- Poems must be sent as separate attachments to waterman@augsborg.edu
- Writers should put "Mitchell Prize" in the subject line.
- The email must contain the titles of the poems, the poet's full name, campus address, and permanent address.
- Winners will be announced by Augsburg College in April.
- In the summer, the Academy will send a letter of congratulations and a certificate to each winner or honorable mention recipient. If two winners are chosen, the prize money will be divided between them.

📅 February 22, 2017 / ✉ Email a correction for this post