

General Announcements

Dining Service Hours

submitted by meyerd1@augsborg.edu

Dining Service Hours for Friday 9/7

Commons

7:00am-7:00pm

Einstein's

7:30am-8:00pm

Kafe Kafeega

7:30am-4:00pm

Nabo

7:30am-7:00pm

📅 September 7, 2018 / ✉ Email a correction for this post

Immigration status update: Associate Professor Mzenga Wanyama

submitted by sitarami@augsborg.edu

We're sharing this update with Associate Professor Mzenga Wanyama's permission and are grateful for the many faculty, staff, and students who've inquired about his status.

Augsburg University News and Media

📅 September 7, 2018 / ✉ Email a correction for this post

Important information regarding upcoming Jewish holidays

submitted by dames@augsborg.edu

Sunday, September 9, Rosh Hashannah begins at sundown.

Monday, September 10 is the first day of Rosh Hashannah. Some American Jews celebrate for one day, others for two.

Tuesday, September 11 is the second day of Rosh Hashannah for some Jews.

Tuesday, September 18, Yom Kippur begins an hour before sundown. some families eat their meal at 4:00 p.m. in order to make it in time for the biggest prayer of the year in the synagogue.

Yom Kippur ends around 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 19, at which point we eat a big meal and usually collapse for the night. Many Jews dress all in white for this holiday and many stay in synagogue all day.

Sukkot begins at sundown on Sunday, September 23, and the first two days are "Holy Days" where some Jews don't work, use electricity, engage in commerce. We build a sukkah (booth) and eat most of our meals there for 8 days, even if it rains or snows.

Sukkot ends at sundown on either on Monday, October 1 or Tuesday, October 2 depending on personal observance. Again, a majority of American Jews do not celebrate this holiday or even know what it's about.

<http://www.augsburg.edu/campusministry>

📅 September 7, 2018 / ✉ Email a correction for this post

Admissions is Hiring

submitted by heinj@augsborg.edu

Looking for work on campus? Consider applying to work in the Admissions Office!

We are looking for energetic, outgoing and responsible students to fill the positions of Auggie Ambassador and